

THE MUSE NEWS

POETRY WEST NEWSLETTER

September 2008

MEETING:

Jessy Randall, Colorado Book Awards finalist for her poetry collection, A Day in Boyland (Ghost Road Press, 2007), will lead a workshop on odes and addresses, for Poetry West, Saturday, September 6, from 10-12 noon, Worner Center, Room 213, Colorado College Campus. Participants will read examples by Shelley, Neruda, Giovanni, di Prima, Koch, and others, and write odes and addresses on unexpected subjects. Randall, Curator and Archivist at Tutt Library, will also offer a mini workshop on digital poetry for those interested at the end of the workshop.

SCHEDULE FOR UPCOMING WORKSHOPS:

The October 4 workshop on using fairy tales as inspiration for poetry will be presented by Tony Friedhoff, MFA, poetry instructor at UCCS.

The November 1 workshop will be presented by Sohem Patel, MFA, creative writing instructor at UCCS.

POETRY SALON:

Hal Gimpleson is the coordinator for the upcoming salons. He is currently working out the schedule and locations and will be contacting Poetry West members directly by email.

CHAPBOOK CONTEST:

We are delighted to announce that Lisa Lewis has won the 2007 chapbook competition. Her collection, Story Box, will be published by Poetry West in Fall 2008.

The following writers are finalists in the chapbook contest:

Shaindel Beers, Love and Other Tragedies

Kellie Cannon, The Hum of the Radiator

Rob Carney, You Can't Trade Africa for a Treadmill

Daniel Daly, Elevator Man

Brett DeFries, The Leaving Season

Susan Gubernat, Analog House

John Estes, Snerve

Margaret J. Hoehn, Brightly Falling

Keith Montesano, About Ravishment

Page Hill Starzinger, Black Tongue

MUSINGS:

Pat Nolan has a feature article, "Poetic Nature," in the back-to-school issue of Pikes Peak Parent magazine.

Chris Martin will read his poems on Friday, Sept. 26, 8:30 p.m., at Edifice Gallery, 325 N. Tejon (across the street from Poor Richard's). Chris Martin is the author of American Music, recipient of the Hayden Carruth Award from Copper Canyon Press. Most of it takes place in Brooklyn, but he was born at Penrose Hospital and grew up at 1718 N. Tejon St. These days he edits Puppy Flowers, an online journal of the arts, and teaches the youths of New York to stay curious. Some years back, a chapbook of his dream poems called Vermontana was published by Noel Black as part of the Angry Dog Midget Editions.

Columbine Poetry Fest--Sept. 20 at Arapahoe Community College, south of Denver in Littleton. In celebration of the 30th Anniversary of Columbine Poets of Colorado, there will be a presentation of the newest members anthology, entitled 30 Years and 30 Miles from Here. Workshop and reading by Joe Hutchison. $10 for members; $20 for non-members of Columbine Poets. For more info, write Anita at anitajg5@aol.com/

Poetry Readings at UCCS: Tuesday, October 7th at 7:00pm, in the University Center at the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs, 1420 Austin Bluffs Parkway. Tichy's third book of poems is Bone Pagoda (Ahsahta Press, 2007). Her fourth collection, Gallowglass, is now in manuscript. Recent poems have appeared in Agni, Beloit Poetry Journal, CutBank, Denver Quarterly, and Indiana Review. She lives in Colorado and in Virginia, where she teaches at George Mason University. She also serves as poetry editor for the new journal Practice: New Writing + Art.

The following submittal is included in its full length because it is so delightful to read in detail:

THE SCARLET LETTER

Opera by Lori Laitman

WORLD PREMIERE

November 6, 7, 9, 2008

Donald W. Reynolds Theater

University of Central Arkansas

The Scarlet Letter, Lori Laitman's opera adaptation of Nathaniel Hawthorne's literary masterpiece, to premiere at The University of Central Arkansas November 2008

« *This canopy of trees,
Once sheltered us in love.
Why must we suffer here?
What must we prove? »*

Acclaimed American composer Lori Laitman has teamed up with award-winning American poet David Mason to create a new dramatic opera, The Scarlet Letter. The opera is based on Nathaniel Hawthorne's 19th century American novel.

Commissioned by the University of Central Arkansas, the opera will see its world premiere on November 6, 7 and 9, 2008, at UCA in Conway, Arkansas. Robert Holden, co-director of the UCA Opera Theater, developed the idea for the commission. "We are beginning a commissioning project for new operas based on classic American literature. In The Scarlet Letter, Lori Laitman and David Mason have created something spectacular that should become part of standard operatic repertoire."

Hawthorne's book was published in 1850 and is considered a milestone in American literature. The story takes place in seventeenth century Boston and revolves around Hester Prynne, who is convicted of adultery and forced to wear a scarlet letter "A" on her chest as a sign of her sin. Hester's strength of character and refusal to reveal the father of her child creates enormous psychological tension amongst all the main characters: Arthur Dimmesdale, the Reverend who is the secret father of the child; Roger Chillingworth, Hester's husband, who had been presumed dead but has reappeared in the community; and the judgmental Puritan townspeople.

Themes of self identity versus community perception have presented poet David Mason with a fertile ground for the challenge of creating his first opera libretto. "The Scarlet Letter is better suited to opera than any novel I have ever read. To begin with, its dramatic structure has particular clarity and resonance This is an exciting story about duplicity and love, the tragic possibility of America. Hawthorne's prose has offered me several lines for adaptation, but my primary goal has been to use spare, often lyrical verse as a way of revealing character and heightening drama..... I want to make singable lines, but also lines the performers will feel proud to be singing... I was hearing a kind of music when I wrote which corresponds very closely to what Lori Laitman has been composing. This is one of the most natural collaborations I have ever engaged in. It's an opportunity for me to grow as a poet, and a profound honor to find words I have written taken up and transmuted by other artists"*.

For Lori Laitman, a prolific composer of art song, creating this opera has also been an experience of tremendous excitement and growth. "I am so thrilled to have had this opportunity. My collaboration with David Mason has been one of the greatest joys of my life. His talent awes me and his beautiful words gave me all of the inspiration I needed. Although this was my largest musical undertaking to date, the approach to the composition was the same one I always use: to compose dramatic music that underscores the emotional content of the words but that also creates musical lines of great beauty. From start to finish, there is a consistent universe of sound. Scored for three main leads and chamber orchestra, the opera is set in two acts: Act I with four scenes and Act II with two scenes. Approximately 2 hours in length, the dramatic pacing of the music follows the dramatic pacing of the narrative, and although there are no recitative sections, there are several major arias that emerge from the drama. Musical motives are used and reused, and combined in different ways, creating a psychological underpinning for each of the characters."

Synopsis:

In old Boston a young woman, Hester Prynne, has been charged with adultery and forced to wear the scarlet letter 'A' embroidered on her breast. Just as she mounts the scaffold to receive her sentence, her husband, long presumed dead and newly escaped from captivity among the Indians, arrives and recognizes her. This man, renamed as Roger Chillingworth, begins a quest to discover the father of Hester's child. As the community wrestles with whether or not to allow Hester to continue raising her daughter, Chillingworth moves in with the pale young minister, Arthur Dimmesdale, who hides the fact that he is the father of Hester's child. In a dark night of the soul, Arthur is taunted by a local witch, and it becomes clear that he is overcome with guilt and inner conflict about his past with Hester. The two lovers meet in the forest, plotting their escape, sure they can escape the laws and mores of men in this new world. But Dimmesdale cannot forget his guilt, and during an election day ceremony he confesses his sin to the crowd, exposing a branded letter 'A' over his own heart. Dimmesdale dies at the moment of his confession, and the opera moves out into a broader, lyrical sense of time in which its stories are at least partly resolved.

Structure: Opera in two acts for chamber orchestra , three principal singing roles, three secondary roles, chorus and one non-singing role

Music: Lori Laitman

Libretto: David Mason

Creation: 2007-2008

Production: The University of Central Arkansas Opera Theater, World Premiere

Cast:

Conductor: Israel Getzov

Stage Director: Diane Kessling

Set Design, Costumes, Lighting: William Henshaw

Principal roles will be sung by UCA faculty members:

Christine Donahue, Soprano: Hester Prynne, a seamstress

Wolfgang Oeste, Tenor: Arthur Dimmesdale, young minister

Robert Holden, Baritone: Roger Chillingworth, a doctor

Martha Antolik, Mezzo-soprano: Mistress Hibbons, a witch

Performance Details:

Public opening performance: November 6, 2008

Pre-performance talk: 6:45 pm

Opera performance: 7:30 pm

Closed performance: November 7, 2008

Pre-performance talk: 12:15 pm

Opera performance: 1 pm

Public performance: November 9, 2008

Pre-performance talk: 6 pm

Opera performance: 7 pm

Location:

The Donald W. Reynolds Theater, University of Central Arkansas, Conway, AR

Tickets will be on sale as of October 1, 2008 at the UCA Ticket Central Box Office.

Tel: (501) 450-3265; Email: boxoffice@uca.edu

Source:

Jona Rapoport

Jona Rapoport Artist Management

www.jonarapoport.com

Email: jona@jonarapoport.com

DEADLINE FOR OCTOBER NEWSLETTER: Please submit any items for the next newsletter to Fawnbell@gmail.com by Thursday, September 18th. I would like to express my sincere appreciation to Julianza for covering the newsletter as interim editor while I was AWOL these last few months. Applause! Also, I plan to continue as editor until the end of 2008 but please express your interest if you would like to be the editor beginning in 2009. I will train the next volunteer and help you set up your prototype and email list.